Players Will Present 'Silver Cord' This Week

Howard Drama To Feature Veteran San Jose Players

PLAYERS' GREATEST CHANCE FOR CHARACTERS OF SEASON

Tickets May Be Reserved

PLAY IS GREAT SUCCESS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

With a chance for characterization that has been unmatched this season, San Jose Players are presenting Sidney Howard's "Silver Cord" next Thursday and Friday.

This is the first time that the play has been presented by any dramatic organization in San Jose, and from its popularity throughout the country, and from the excellence of the cast, the production should be one of the most successful in Players' history.

Exceptional Cast

San Jose Players have cast in a play of universal appeal and exceptional writing, actors and actresses who through their past performances have proved some of the best in the organization.

Vera Parr, who has been seen in "Lady Windermere's Fan" and "Romeo and Juliet," is to be seen in the role of Mrs. Phelps, the mother, who through her narrowness and selfishness nearly wrecked the lives of all around her.

Contrasted to this is the progressive ideals held by Christina and David, which are played by Lillian and Hugh Gillis. Although a bitter has been raised in his father's narrowness, through education he has broadened out and is able to see the error of his ways. (Continued on Page Three)

Third Annual Ball Proves To Be the Success of Season

Lights! Colors! Silver hair and silver faces! Mr. Lubowski in a Russian peasant smock—a real one. A queen, beautiful in white satin and royal robes!

Such was the third annual costume ball held Saturday night, which formally opened the men's gymnasium as far as the student's social life is concerned.

In modernistic setting whose effectiveness was accomplished by the decorative activities of Perry Stratton, and to the music of True Tourtellot's orchestra, mostly ensembles, dashing caballeros, gypsies, geishas, garbs from every corner of the globe—and Mr. Newby's pig-tailed Mandarin—whirled in kaleidoscopic colors under magenta flood lights.

Climaxing the ball was the march to the throne of the winning queen aspirant, Barbara Perren, Alienian candidate, accompanied by the other contest entrants as her royal retinue, was

Dr. Botts Is Elected President Alumni Assn.

Dr. E. D. Botts, of the chemistry department of the San Jose State faculty, was recently elected president of the Bay District chapter of the University of Wisconsin Alumni Association. Dr. Botts is well liked at San Jose State, and is known throughout the State as an authority on paints.

His election as president is appreciated by the college as an honor, for this association is large and powerful. Dr. Botts has a novel program planned for the coming year.

Reno Trip Climaxes Romance Between Teacher and Pupil

A romance which began in the chemistry classroom at State a year ago was perpetuated Saturday when Rodger L. Moore of the college was married to Gertrude Witherspoon, popular young faculty member, in Reno.

When classes ended Friday, Moore and his instructress left for Reno, where the marriage license was issued shortly before noon Saturday, according to the Associated Press. They were married a few hours later.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Maude Witherspoon of 30 East Empire street. She came here from Lake county and graduated from the college in 1928, receiving her master's degree from Stanford last summer. She was editor of the 1928 La Torre, the college year-book, which won first prize in an annual contest conducted among junior colleges and normal schools of the United States. She is a member of the Kappa Kappa Sigma and Kappa Delta Pi sororities. Recently she devised and with the assistance of E. S. Thompson and Ralph Montoya put into use a simplified inventory system in the natural science department of the college, which is estimated to save the college $10000. It has since been adopted by San Francisco State college.

Bride's Mother Approves

Moore, registered from Porterville, is center on the college football squad. He is majoring in physical education and will graduate next year.

The bride's mother knew and approved of the wedding plans. (Continued on Page Three)

To Be Completed In Time for the Football Season

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA IS TO BE ONE OF FIRST GAMES

$21,000 To Be Borrowed

COLLEGE CORPORATION IS ORGANIZED AND IN CHARGE

Dreams and hopes of San Jose State students were brought one step nearer fulfillment yesterday when a newly appointed Board of Construction and Development decided to borrow twenty-one thousand dollars saved by the students for such projects to begin construction of a stadium on June 1.

The board, which will be incorporated, will have Mr. Minssen as chairman, Mr. Thomas, Dr. Peterson, H. C. McDonald, Leon Warmke, and John Horning as members, with Dr. MacQuarrie as an ex-officio member, and will be known as the San Jose State College Corporation, and is organized for the purpose of promoting and facilitating the building of the stadium and future projects.

The new oval, which will be completed by the start of next football season, will have a turf field. The turf, of a special variety, will be covered with a surface of sand if not completely grown by the time of the first football game here.

It is rumored that the University of Nevada football squad will play here next season for the first time in the history of San Jose State, probably to face a stronger team than State has ever put on a field.

Resigns

Dr. Virginia Sanderson, who has resigned as Head of the Speech Arts Department to accept a like position at Ohio University.

San Jose State Faces Possibility of Ten Per Cent Cut in Annual Budget

Prospects of a serious cut by the state in next year's budget were confronting the administrative offices of San Jose State today, according to Dr. T. W. MacQuarrie, President of the college.

The cut, which if it goes into effect would subtract almost forty thousand dollars from the annual income of the college, would mean a truly serious loss to San Jose State, for at present there seems no place at which the cut could be made on the college budget.

There is a possibility that if the budget cut goes into effect, there will be no new teachers at

State next year, and the normal increase in the salary scale of the present instructors may have to be held up, although there will probably be no decrease of the present salaries.

Dr. MacQuarrie and Mr. Minssen are to journey to Sacramento Friday and Saturday to limit the cut if possible.

Annual Women's Jinx Will Be Celebrated On April 27 By Associated Co-eds of State

The Jinx, an annual affair, sponsored by the Associated Women Students of the college, which provides an evening of dancing, singing, and fun for all date women will be held in the women's gymnasium, Wednesday evening, April 27th.

This year's Jinx will be in the form of a Kid Party and will give all co-eds an opportunity to get acquainted in a more informal and amusing manner. Women students who have attended the previous parties are assured of a delightful evening, and invitations, not being formal, all girls are perfectly welcome. "The more the merrier," as the old saying goes, applies to the Jinx.

Miss Mary Jones is chairman of the affair and committees are working hard in order to make the evening one to be remembered.

Entertainment and refreshments will also be features of the evening.

Girls, don't forget the date—this Wednesday evening, April 27th—in the Women's Gym. Bring yourself and your room-mate. Be seen! you then.

Just Among Ourselves

Note—This column is personal between the president and the college. Outsiders are requested not to read it nor to make any use of the material.

The Costume Ball was a grand success. Looked like a very nice party to me. I know how Dr. Lubowski and his associates worked to put it over. They are deserving of the highest praise. It was a most unselfish service to the whole college.

Dr. Lubowski asked me to crown the queen. I just glared at him and said, "No." Didn't bother him in the least. He went off and sent Adah May. I capitulated. Glad I did. A close-up of Queen Barbara and her ladies was worth anyone's time. Dear me, but they were beautiful.

Preliminary plans should be made right now for next year's Costume Ball. Call a meeting of all concerned and take up every point while memories are fresh. We do that in the college administration and it works well.

Coach Walker and his young men added greatly to the entertainment. Interested to note that so many in the audience appreciated good diving. There was a distinct gradation in the applause. Wish we could have gotten a color picture of the bleachers with all those costumes.

Do you know, we have a rather excellent service in mental hygiene here? If you find yourself thinking in a circle, round and round, if you're sorry for yourself and can't possibly get enough sympathy, even if you just have an insensate longing for superiority, it wouldn't be a bad idea for you to talk things over with Dr. DeVoss. Our psychologists are very wholesome. They've been able to help many times. That dim, misty, perhaps rosy future seems to concern us mightily. Personally, I've gotten to the point where I don't want to think of it. I find the future comes soon enough without longing for it, and when it does come, there isn't the thrill I expected. More and more I feel that if we can't enjoy the present, we'll be disappointed in the future. I'm in favor of a normal, wholesome growth. "And the child grew and waxed strong, and increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." I hope I've quoted that correctly, but doesn't it picture an ideal, wholesome development? Health, strength, wisdom, charm, a simple, normal, friendly, unselfish, happy life.

It's so easy to allow ourselves to become warped, panic stricken over the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," and we drive our tired brains to the conclusion that we may as well "our quietus make with a bare bodkin". Poor old Hamlet. Just sorry for himself. If I'd had a chance to talk with him then, I would have said, "See here, old man, you need a little diversion. You're too much interested in yourself. You'd better stick around a while. That's sporting, anyhow. The end will come soon

Casanova

Dear Casanova:
I'm terribly lonesome and homesick. What on earth am I going to do. I suppose one reason is the fact that I don't know many people here at school.

M. P.

Dear M. P.:
First and foremost you evidently haven't enough work to keep you from getting homesick. You'd be surprised what a remedy work is. It will cure about everything. Take some more courses, get into some clubs, get interested in what is happening around school. Before you know it, you'll be so busy that you won't be lonesome and when you do go home for vacation you'll surprise all the folks by showing them not only a fine scholastic record, but also they'll see what excellent work you have been doing on the campus.

CASANOVA.

Dear Casanova:
Should I be vaccinated this week? I was vaccinated once about four years ago.

BET.

It wouldn't be a bad idea to be vaccinated again. You'll either get an immune reaction, which means that you're first vaccination is still O. K., or you'll get a vaccinoid or "accelerated reaction." Better have one. It won't hurt you, and it might be interesting to see what happens.

Take a few moments out and read up on vaccination, its origin and care. You may find some new facts you've never heard of before.

CASA.

enough, and when it does just remember this: You'll be a long time dead.

Black Cat

The Bad Old Lady sat in her rustic old chair before her small attic window—in her Owl's Nest—bathed in the pale light from the midnight moon. . . . She drummed with her bent fingers on the arm of her chair, thoughtfully. The omnipresent Peter, sitting beside her, yawned insolently. After a while she said with a queer intonation:

"His shoulders sag
His face is glum;
The ladder of success
He's clumb . . .

"Is it not true, Peter," she mused. "The price of success is generally the sacrifice of Freedom and Life. . . .

"Only little things are free;
Dashing spray upon the sea,
Flying birds and humming bee,
These and these alone, are free."

"You and I are free too, Peter, don't we? During the day we are just ordinary students struggling for success along with the rest. But here in the Owl's Nest we are free—free to do and think as we like!" She pulled Peter's ear, and the back cat seized her hand in his big jaws in one of his ferocious caresses. . . .

" . . . Peter," she teased in a tone of gayest comradeship, "you certainly were intrigued by the 'Phantom of the Opera and his unfortunate Christine' at the ball tonight. Was it admiration of the spirit of the thing or just your cat's curiosity to know who they were?" She fingered the black cat's tail with her withered old claw. "I was almost jealous Peter; you seemed completely captivated by the queen of the campus. I know you are a collegiate cat and at times inspired, but you must not neglect your old mistress."

The black cat stilled his eyes

Do You Travel?

Strange, Gang?

Yes, maybe it is strange that many of our folks right here in college have never visited California's most remarkable National Park. Perhaps they have no desire to see Yosemite, perhaps there are other difficulties. But at any rate, as soon as possible, everyone should see this canyon sculptured out of walls of granite.

We have all heard of Half Dome, or El Capitan, of the Cathedral Rocks, but all the dreamings in the world could not compare with the magnificence that nature has so lavishly bestowed upon Yosemite.

And there, too, hangs about Yosemite the romance of Indian days, Indian legends, and there creeps into that awe-inspiring presence of sheer cliffs, foaming falls, and tall trees the shadows of the distant past painting ever so slightly for us myths of thousands of years ago.

If you love the mystery of the past, if you love the glory of the present, and the beauty that is nature, see Yosemite soon.

President Hoover's war against depression gained another objective when he signed the Glass-Steagall bill designed to aid distressed banks by liberalizing the credit facilities of the Federal reserve banks. The bills means, incidentally, that the treasury can put out as much as $2,500,000,000 in new money.

and yawned in her face. Then he opened his eyes for a moment and regarded her with the quenchless and impersonal curiosity of cats.

These Pessimistic Philosophies

Perhaps the greatest percent of intelligent atheists is found in colleges. Professors do not hesitate to expose and expound their skepticism of religion. I have heard recently several young intellectuals at State proudly declare themselves much too clever to place any faith whatever in a superstition called God.

If the things ended there, it wouldn't be worth mentioning. Whether or not you believe in Things extra-mundane is none of my business, and you should worry if I concern myself about a Hereafter. But—

Last week a student at State committed suicide. Had she heard and taken seriously the same theories that we all hear expressed in some classes? Had she questioned the worth-whileness of life and found the answer in the agnosticism of a classmate or an instructor? Had the world been painted for her in such ugly smears that she chose to leave it? Youth doesn't walk off the stage in the first act unless it's pretty sure that the play's a flop. And nothing will make it lose its faith so fast as the jeers of critics, coldly proclaiming that there can be no box office returns, no acclaim, no appreciation anywhere.

I watched a boy in the University of California develop a case of melancholia. He pricked up his ears in a psychology class and started to Think. I don't say thinking isn't a good thing in moderation, but most minds are incapable of untangling the riddle of self. The boy took himself seriously, saw himself a pebble on an endless beach, became morbid, wondered about God, when before that time he had never questioned His existence.

Be an atheist, if you can stand it. But for the sake of whatever you do believe in, don't preach a gospel of emptiness to gullible adolescence. There is constructive knowledge. When courage is wanting, a doctrine of stark realism, as it is called, is likely to advance the sale of strychnine. Anyway, it's an awful chance to take.

Upstairs To the Right

It is said that it is as easy as a camel to go through a needle's eye as it is for a rich man to go into heaven. Not wishing to appear too sacrilegious, may I say my own not too apt version, is as easy for a camel to go through a needle's eye as it is for a Woman's Club and a Theatre Guild to give a good play. It is not meant to reflect on the professional organization of the name, but it meant to refer to some such organization as our own fair city boasts of. A lot of the aspiring social leaders of the town get together and decide to produce a play—"It gives the young people a chance to display their talents, it fills the community with higher and more desirable ideals, it points the way to true artistic achievement—mention the pictures in the Society Section, the notice at the local luncheon club as Mrs. So-and-So who is very interested in the work that some of our young people are doing in the coming production of Such-and-Such, a dilapidated glow that comes from dabbling in the so-called arts. They then appoint each other various committee heads and proceed to get the work done. The newspaper may have been filled with a lot of tripe and fallacy, but the biggest lie ever printed was the sentence, just preceding this one. They get the work done? These social "Mamas" who uphold rather than down who slash their speech in order to appear English, who gush on the drama and adore actors. They get it done? One for him laughter. If they could ever get under their twiddling nervousness and down to what they really feel, they would see that they didn't ever intend to do it. They intended to do just what in the end they are "forced" to do. They are "so sorry," but they do wish that the east would just be this—and that—and the other thing—and everything! The turn out to be figure-heads, and not very attractive ones at that. If the show is ragged, if the actors look harried—don't blame the actors, pardon the director pin the blue ribbon for his book prize on the ample shoulders of our charming Social Leader. Enough—impotent rage chokes me—

General Elementary Society Holds Initial Meeting Thursday Afternoon; Phillip Niederauer Is First Chairman

MACQUARRIE SPEAKS TO STUDENTS AT MEETING

The initial gathering of the General Elementary Society, a general education society, held in the cafeteria on Thursday afternoon, showed promises of future success and accomplishment.

Phillip Niederauer, toastmaster, took charge of the meeting. Many people prominent in the field of education spoke. Dr. MacQuarrie spoke. Dr. MacQuarrie and Dr. Freeland represented the college; from outside there were Miss Pansy Abbott, County Superintendent of San Mateo; Hazel Freeman, Rural Superintendent of San Mateo County; and Mr. Jish, President of the Board of Education of the San Francisco school.

A dance for the newly organized society was discussed, and election of officers took place. Following in the election of Gertrude Gibson, president; Phillip Niederauer and Luella Casey put up for vice president; and Mary Carmichael for secretary.

The purpose of the society is to develop leadership and more social life, a need that is felt greatly.

Sponsors of the organization are Dr. George Freeland, Mrs. Cecile B. Hall, Miss Elsie Toles, and Miss Kathrine Hall.

New Community-Campus Cooperation Committee Is Announced at Regular Meeting of San Jose State Ex-Board

Alumni Attempt To Liberalize Board

Cleveland, O.—The desire of a number of alumni of Ohio State University to liberalize the university board of trustees has resulted in the circulation of petitions here asking Gov. George White to appoint to the board next month Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War and mentioned as a Democratic candidate for the presidency.

The conservative nature of the board was illustrated a year ago when Prof. H. A. Miller, liberal professor of sociology at the university, was dismissed because he made a speech in favor of Indian independence while on a visit to India.

Outstanding among the events of the evening was the prize award by the queen for the best costumed couple. First prize, a box of candy, went to Marion Weller and Howard Nelson, a futuristic pair in an exotic conception of silver and black.

Second prize, which were passed to the California Theatre, was won by Joy Arps and Dick Glyer, as the leading characters of "The Phantom of the Opera."

Dorothy Horn and Leila Blackford as Red Devils, took third prize, and fourth honors went to the Red Shadow and his consort.

Between-dance entertainment features included the novel diving contest and Jewel Smith who interpreted a modernistic hula.

Concessions in an adjoining room were the centers of attraction during the intermissions. Lotteries and other games of chance were bought and paid for with elaborate souvenir counterfeited bills, and refreshments were sold.

Credit goes to the Language department, who sponsored the ball, and San Jose State extends a gesture of appreciation to city merchants and Navlet Company, florists.

FIESTA FLOAT DISCUSSION BY STATE COLLEGE OFFICIALS

April 19.

A regular meeting of the Ex-Board was called to order by President John Horning. Roll was called and minutes of the previous meeting was read and approved.

Under old business the proposed Fiesta float was discussed, but no decision could be made until Mr. Pettit of the Fiesta committee was heard from.

Under new business President Horning announced the organization of a Community-Campus Cooperation committee, whose purpose will be to establish better relations between the college and the community. The radio programs featuring student talent, which will occur on Wednesday nights from now until June 8, were mentioned as being a project of this new organization.

It was moved, seconded and carried that Leon Warnke be made general chairman of the above committee as well as of the committee for the coming student body drive. The object of said drive will probably be the turf for the new stadium.

Mr. Moore then stated that there was not enough support being given for the volleyball teams, and urged more men to come out for this sport.

Mr. Welz reported that about $35 had been realized on the Concert Series, and present enthusiasm indicates that there will be a similar series next year.

The preparations for the Costume Ball were discussed, and swimming exhibitions in the pool were announced as a new attraction.

Mr. Leon Warnke, College of Pacific Conference delegate, praised the courtesy and generosity of the conference hosts.

After considerable discussion, it was moved, seconded and carried that a special discussion be held between State and C. O. P. on some social science subject, all transportation for guests to be paid by San Jose State, the above invitation not to be considered a precedent.

As there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

JEAN BYERS, Secretary.

State Tracksters Lose by 84 to 47 Score

Olympic Club Team Proves Too Strong for College Outfit

SALVATO EASILY TAKES HUNDRED; WOOL WINS POLE VAULT

Despite the absence of most of their stars, the Olympic Club of San Francisco proved too strong for San Jose State's track squad Saturday, winning by a score of 84 to 47.

The clubmen captured eleven first places in the meet held on the Spartan track and field, dominating the events from the initial event when Harry Carter breezed in to win the opening event, the mile run.

Salvato Stars

Despite light showers in the morning, the track was fairly fast, and afforded Louis Salvato, Spartan sprint star, enough firm footing to walk off with the 100-yard dash in the fast time of 9.8 seconds.

Salvato won handily from Branting of the Olympic club, Robinson of San Jose State nosing out Charley Stith for third.

The Spartan star came back to win the 220-yard dash in 21.6 nosing out Walts of the club at the tape. Salvato's sweep in the two sprints made him the only double winner of the day.

The only other Spartan to capture a first place was Harper in the half-mile.

The clubmen won all the first places in the field events.

Wool Wins

Jack Wool, San Jose State captain last year, and now with the Winged-O, won the pole vault without extending himself, at 12 feet.

Charley Stith, also an ex-Spartan, won the low hurdles in 24.9, while Fred Schmitt, who starred for the local college last year, captured the discus with a toss of 134 feet 9 inches, and took second in the shot.

Summary

Mile run—Won by Carter (OC); Brack (SJ), second; Lyda (SJ), third. Time: 4:29.7.

Track To Be Improved By Straightaway for 220

Before another year rolls around, San Jose State trackmen will have a 220-yard straightaway for their sprints.

Plans for the extension of the straightaway to the new distance were revealed yesterday by college officials. According to plans it will be ready by this time next year.

The new extension will eliminate the curve that the trackmen are forced to make with the present track. The improvement will give the Spartans one of the finest trap plants in college circles.

Part of Program

The addition is just part of the athletic extension program that the San Jose State College is undertaking. The local college has increased its property and now owns 18 acres of land in the Phelan tract. This is twice as much acreage as the present Spartan field.

On the new acquisition a football stadium will be built. Work is scheduled to start June 1. When the grid stadium is ready for use the present football field will be turned over entirely for track.

second; Silva (SJ), third. Time: 15.8.

220-yard low hurdles—Won by Stith (OC); Dole (OC), second; Leslie (SJ), third. Time: 24.9.

The meet with San Francisco State is still up in the air. It seems that Coach Blesh had made some sort of arrangements with them to have a meet at San Francisco for Saturday, April 30, but it seems that nothing definite has been done as yet. If this meet is scheduled it will be the semi-windup before the Far Western Conference track meet which is May 7, at Sacramento.

Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, finally showed some of his tennis ability he possesses by defeating Wilmer Allison, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4. At the beginning of the year, Vines was supposed to be a certainty for the Davis Cup team, but his rating took a decided drop when he was defeated by several unknowns.
